Content of the Module	The study of the influence of culture, society, and contemporary social values on human behavior and social interaction. The course examines the sociological nature, bases, and consequences of social values and social problems and their relationship to the self. Social issues such as the culture of poverty, violence, drug use, and societal and family dysfunction are examined. This course is designed to help the student understand the social values and the cultural and social context of human behavior and social interaction. Students will be introduced to the nature and scope of social problems and social values, their social and cultural bases, and alternative approaches to solving social problems. Changes in social values and social problems will be considered, as well as a cohort and subcultural differences among groups and individuals.

Learning Objectives

A. General Instructional Objectives

This course seeks to:

- Move students toward a more global mindset.
- Help students assess the current research on social problems and social values.
- Develop students' understanding of the cultural and historical nature of social and cultural issues and their influence on personal attitudes.
- Assist the student in developing a personal orientation toward social issues and social values that is premised on a Christian worldview.
- Encourage students to develop sensitivity to the myriad of issues that impact cross-cultural communications, and how to minimize the communication barriers inherent in this process.
- Assist the student in developing various counseling strategies and techniques useful in working with diverse populations and ethnic groups.
- Explore theories of multicultural counseling, theories of identity development and multicultural competencies.
- Examine advocacy processes needed to address institutional and social barriers that impede access, equity, and success for clients

B. Specific Behavioral Objectives

As a result of the activities and study in this course, the student should be able to:

- Recognize contextual and systemic dynamics (e.g., gender, age, socioeconomic status, culture/race/ethnicity, sexual orientation, spirituality, religion, larger systems, social context). (AAMFT 1.2.1)
- Gather and review intake information, giving balanced attention to individual, family, community, cultural, and contextual factors. (AAMFT 1.3.1)
- Understand the legal requirements and limitations for working with vulnerable populations (e.g., minors). (AAFMT 1.5.1)
- Understand the strengths and limitations of the models of assessment and diagnosis, especially as they relate to different cultural, economic, and ethnic groups. (AAFMT 2.1.6)
- Diagnose and assess client behavioral and relational health problems systemically and contextually. (AAFMT 2.3.1)
- Evaluate the accuracy and cultural relevance of behavioral health and relational diagnoses. (AAMFT 2.4.3)
- Advocate with clients in obtaining quality care, appropriate resources, and services in their community. (AAFMT 3.5.1)
